Dear Jim Farrell:

I am writing in response to your ad for writers and editors on the Editor and Publisher website.

I was associate editor, music editor, production manager, copy editor and popular music columnist for the Welcomat, Philadelphia's largest "alternative" weekly which now is known as Philadelphia Weekly.

As associate editor I was in charge of all freelancers including regular columnists and the entire A&E section, as well as letters to the editor. As music editor, I brought several new writers to the paper.

I am primarily interested in writing, but I also enjoy copy editing as well and was known in the office as "having an eye for detail."

My main area of expertise is popular music, with special consideration given to American roots-based music (folk, blues, country, singer-songwriters etc.) but I am interested in writing on other subjects as well.

Enclosed is my resume and several clips of my writing.

Thank you for your consideration. I Look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Peter Brown
